

The Family Research Council, a Washington-based organization promoting traditional family values in public policy, recently issued its legislative report card for Members of Congress.

Click here to read which Members of Congress it lists as the biggest defenders of traditional values.